Phase-I in Uttar Pradesh, by and large, are beign operated satisfactorily. To control pollution on account of dumping of human and cattle waste in the river, programmes to generate awareness to keep the river clean and to seek people's participation in this endeavour are on.

Introduction of CT-2OR PHS Telephones in India

412. SHRI DILIP SINGH JUDEV:
SHRI RAGHAVJI:

Will the Minister of COMMUNICAITONS be pleased tc state:

(a) whether Government's attention has been drawn to the recent press reports about the introduction of inexpensive CT-2 Telephones or PHS Telephones in Singapore, Japan and USA which cost much less than the Cellular Telephones, and if so, the details thereof; and

(b) whether Government would consider the introduction of new CT-2 or PHS Telephoens, as a value added communication service in India, particularly when they cost less than one-fourth the price of Cellular Telephones but can perform more than 80% of their functions?

THE MINISTER OF STATE OF THE MINISTRY OF COMMUNICATIONS (SHRI SUKH RAM): (a) Yes, Sir. MTNL had conducted field trials only for CT-2 technology to a limited extent in Delhi and Bombay. The services offered by CT-2 are generally acceptable although limited in facilities compared to Cellular Telephones. CT-2 and Cellular phoens have different features and address different markets and are supplementary in nature.

(b) There is no such proposal at present.
